

DREAM KITCHENS & BATHS

Form marries function in these innovative, award-winning designs

There were dozens of impressive entries submitted for the first annual design competition organized by the Baltimore Washington Chapter of the National Kitchen and Bath Association (NKBA) and sponsored by HOME & DESIGN magazine. NKBA is comprised of kitchen and bath specialists who adhere to the organization's high standards of design, safety and functionality. Judging the impressive array of entries was a group of seasoned professionals with a variety of design perspectives: Connie Edwards of American Woodmark Corporation; Amy Gardner, AIA, of Gardner Mohr Architects LLC; Diane Gordy of DGI Design Group; Rob Morris of Morris-Day Designers and Builders; and HOME&DESIGN editor in chief Sharon Jaffe Dan. We spotlight the winners on the following pages.

In the Zone

Modifying a galley kitchen arrangement to satisfy the needs of a growing family with multiple cooks was the challenge facing Mastercraft Design, Inc.'s Rita McSorley. The plans for a kitchen that doubled as a place for family gatherings included an informal seating area and designated spaces for cookbooks and a television. The use of multiple types of wood and finishes helped to create different zones within the kitchen. The finished space serves as a center for cooking and entertaining as well as a link to the newly renovated dining room.
